Biography
John Forbes was born in Melbourne in 1950 and lived much of his early life in New Guinea, Malaya and Sydney. He graduated from the University of Sydney and worked as a teacher of creative writing, as a reviewer and as a furniture removalist. He won the Poetry Society of Australia New Poetry Award in 1972 and the Southerly Award for young writers in 1976. He received Literature Board grants in 1973 – 1974, 1982, 1988 and 1981 and an Arts Victoria Grant in 1994. He co-edited the journal Leatherjacket and edited the magazine Surfers Paradise. His poetry was widely published in literary magazines both in Australia and overseas. He published seven books of poetry. His final volume Damaged Glamour was published after his death in 1998.

Series A: Poetry

The series comprises approximately 230 published and unpublished poems and drafts of poems covering the whole period of Forbes’s creative output and reflecting his technique of writing through multiple drafts. The published poems include poems from all of Forbes’s published collections as well as uncollected poems published in journals, newspapers and literary magazines. As well as the poems in Series A, there are poems scattered through the collection in notebooks, on the back of letters and on scrap paper. Individual poems are listed in the index below.

Index of Poems

The poems have been arranged alphabetically according to title or first line. They have been grouped according to the final published title, where one exists, even where titles of earlier versions vary; where titled and untitled drafts appear to be versions of the same work they have been grouped under the title.

Capitalisation follows that appearing in the published volumes. With unpublished or uncollected poems, the capitalisation in the original has been preserved.
