Biography The Street Arts Theatre Company was founded in Brisbane in 1982. The founding members were Steve Capelin, Pauline Peel and Denis Peel, and the company's aim was to provide community based theatre. Its original focus was on festivals and community events, but it then moved towards more formal productions. Performances were staged at venues including the Paint Factory in Brisbane and throughout Queensland. In 1997 the Company became the Arterial Group and changed its focus to multimedia.

History of the Company to 1990

Street Arts Community Theatre Company was formed in Brisbane in 1982 by three founding members - Steve Capelin, Pauline Peel and Denis Peel. The main aim of the company was to promote, foster and practise the art of community based theatre. The name, Street Arts, was adopted to indicate that the group was not one which worked within the walls of a conventional building, but one which took theatre to the people.

Upon registering as an association in January 1983 a "Committee of Management" was elected consisting of a President, Secretary, Treasurer and 3 to 5 elected members. This Committee met monthly and was elected by the members at each Annual General Meeting. The company was incorporated in December 1986 and the new Management Committee continued on with the same functions. Membership of the company was open to the public and subject to payment of a fee. Members received a newsletter and discounts for workshop and admission fees.

The original company of 3 members grew to 5 in 1984 and 8 in 1986. All workers were paid the same basic wage and worked on a collective basis with administrative and artistic decisions made at weekly company Meetings. This collective way of working and of decision making was a unique feature of the company but it could not be written into the constitution.

The company was based in the home of the administrator Pauline Peel until it moved into a disused church in Mitchell Street in West End in 1983. In keeping with their philosophy productions took place within specific communities where the company worked. In this period there were major community shows in Musgrave Park in South Brisbane, in indoor and outdoor venues in Inala, in a shopping centre at Logan City, outdoors in Ayr and Innisfail, in the Rialto Theatre and in Boundary Street in West End and at Bougainville in New Guinea. An Art and Working Life Project was undertaken in 1986 in association with the Federated Miscellaneous Workers Union and since that time other Art and Working Life Projects have been produced and toured.

In 1987 the company hired "The Paint Factory" as a venue. This was a commercial property off Montague Road in South Brisbane and was formerly used by the Spartan Company to manufacture paint. For the first time the company now performed in its own venue with an office and storage area attached. However, the company continued to travel to specific communities, both within Brisbane and Queensland.

"The Paint Factory" was shared with "The Rock n Roll Circus", a group of performers who initially came together at a Street Arts production in 1986 and decided to form their own company. They were fostered by Street Arts and have established themselves as a separate company, performing their own brand of circus, music and theatre. Street Arts activities have directly fostered the growth of community theatre companies in Inala and Logan City.

Artistically the company began by using circus skills to establish contacts both within schools and the wider community. With the growth of the Rock n Roll Circus and the change in personnel (by 1988 all 3 founding members have left) the company lost its circus aspect. Music continued to have a strong element in its performances. The company produced original shows with specially written scripts, written either by the company or by professional writers in consultation with their chosen community. In 1989 a decision was made to use scripts not commissioned by the company but which had been performed successfully by other theatrical companies.
