Biography

Helen Darville was born in Brisbane, Queensland, in 1971, the daughter of English migrants. She was educated at Rochedale Redeemer Lutheran College between 1984 and 1988. In 1989 she began an arts degree at The University of Queensland. By 1992 she had adopted Demidenko as her last name and claimed to be of Irish-Ukrainian ancestry. Darville’s novel, The Hand That Signed the Paper, which claimed to be a family history based on oral testimony, won the The Australian/Vogel National Literary Award for an unpublished manuscript in 1993, the Australian Literature Society Gold medal in 1994 and the Miles Franklin Award in 1995. It produced wide-spread discussion in literary circles because of its perceived anti-Semitism, but this discussion escalated when Darville’s real background was revealed. Darville continued to play the role of an Irish-Ukrainian, frequently wearing Ukrainian peasant blouses to literary events and listing herself in Who’s Who of Australian Writers (2nd. ed. 1995) as: Demidenko, Helen(a) (Markova). In 1995, the novel was re-issued, attributing authorship to Helen Darville. In 2002 Darville announced that she would be auctioning her Australian Literary Society gold medal to fund a law degree.
