Biography
Julian Burnside QC is a Melbourne barrister and author. In 2001 he helped bring legal action against the Australian Government over its decision to prevent asylum seekers rescued by the ship MV Tampa from having their claims for asylum heard in Australia. He subsequently became a leading public critic of the Government's refugee and anti-terrorism laws. Kate Durham is a Melbourne artist who founded Spare Rooms for Refugees, a program to provide community accommodation and other support to refugees. In late 2001 Durham and others began exchanging letters with asylum seekers detained on Nauru by the Australian Government. Durham and BBC journalist Sarah Macdonald travelled to Nauru clandestinely in June 2002, becoming the first independent eyewitnesses to visit the refugee detention centre and interview its occupants.

Notes on the arrangement of the correspondence
Boxes 1 – 3 contain correspondence from asylum seekers held in detention on Nauru by the Australian Government. The letters are arranged as follows:

Where there are five or more letters from one individual or family the letters have been collated and a separate folder created for each person or family. These folders have been arranged alphabetically by the family name. This series runs from Box 1 Folder 1 to Box 2 Folder 9.

Where an individual has less than five letters in the collection, the letters are in two separate series. One series runs from Folder 10 to Folder 14 and is arranged alphabetically by family name. The other series, contained in Box 3, comprises letters which have not been collated or arranged by family name but have been listed item by item. Some individuals are represented in both series. Letters without identifiable authors are in Box 2 folder 15.
